One sunny morning, Lulu found a shiny pair of goggles in her backyard.

They sparkled like a rainbow and had a tiny note attached:

"These are the Greatness Goggles. Wear them, and see the amazing in everyone!"

At school, Lulu noticed her friends.

The shy boy who never spoke suddenly seemed like a brilliant storyteller.

The quiet girl in the corner was an incredible artist, painting worlds no one had ever imagined.

She always thought she wasn't very special...

But through the goggles, she saw a kind, clever, and funny girl who could make a difference.

“Look! Everyone has greatness!” she said.

Her parents smiled.

“Yes, Lulu. Sometimes you just need to look closely to see it.”

From that day on, Lulu didn't need the goggles anymore.

She had learned the secret: greatness isn't about being the best—it's about seeing the best in everyone... including yourself.

And so, Lulu shared her goggles with anyone who needed them... in their hearts, if not on their noses.

And every day, the world became a little brighter, one great smile at a time.
